

Street furniture old and new top left one of the surviving lion-head standpipe which provided water before the houses were connected to the mains in the 1950s;

top right the Bedfordshire village name plate originating with the Festival of Britain in 1951, whose symbol is on the left;

below left a bus shelter without (2019) any buses;

below right a news items of the 1960s when authority surfaced the footpaths with tarmac hindering access to terrace front doors (David Baker except lower right)