

Carved stone fragment, apparently part of a cross, with a possible fleur-de-lys in the angle between two of its arms. Reported as found in 1972 by John Dunkley during the demolition of 22 Bletsoe. Dating uncertain. Present (2019) whereabouts unknown.